

Caxton, Brevan, Tudor Bet on 'Star Power' for New Funds

By Lydia Tomkiw | 12/13/17

...“I think it will be reassuring to some investors to have Tudor Jones and Howard step back in and play a bigger role. But I’m not sure it will be enough to reassure all of the investors,” he says.

....The moves can be seen as aiming to get back confidence that has been shaken in recent years, says Chris Cutler, president of Manager Analysis Services.

“It’s a last-ditch marketing approach, saying we are bringing the best of the best, the original value creators,” he says, adding that patience has worn thin for many institutional investors, though interest from large, foreign pensions or sovereign wealth funds remains a possibility.